Chicago, July 26---New York and Chicago battled to an even break in the double header to-day. In the first game, King Cole triumphed over Ed Walsh in a pitching duel, and the men of Chance were the victors, 1 to 0.

In the second Brown, McAlle and Pich were among the pitching victims, and the locals were on the long end of the 7 to 3 score.

The last game was as much of a slugfest as the first was a pitchers' battle. The Sox secured eleven hits and the Athletics nine. When the Chicago American Leagueers get to any bunch of twirlers for eleven safe drives it is a slugging game for fair.

Birdie Cree was the fellow with the punch for the New York crew. He accumulated two hits in the first game and a pair in the second. But for effectiveness he had nothing on Ed Sweeney and Peckinpah. The former's double paved the way for the winning run in the first. In the second Peck hit one to the furthestmost spot in center field for a home run. Since Cree was standing on the paths at the time this blow counted for two-thirds of the New York tally.

Cole was great in the first battle. He gave but four hits, while his pals secured one more off Walsh. Big Ed's old time speed was missing. But he had control, a steady head, and a look. And in the days when he was tossed among the great he didn't have the latter.

Twenty-two thousand watched the double bill. The chancemen grabbed their run in the third inning. They were in the game progressed they were glad they got it early for another chance never presented itself. Sweeney opened this round with a double, and Peckinpah followed with a double. Ed prolonged the chase until Maise got to second. Cole's infield out put Fritz on third and he scored on Boone's clean single.

The Sox didn't get a hit until the fifth and since they didn't bunch any there after they never threatened seriously.

It was Brown against Faber in the second and neither pitcher displayed a great deal. Cree opened the second with a single and was sacrificed. Peckinpah then drove off his homer and the New Yorkers had two.

Passes to Collins and Fournier, Rodie's sacrifice and Schalks single in the Sox half tied it up. The third saw Brown's finish. Weaver, Blackburne and Demmitt struggled in a row and Brown was told to get beneath the shower. Up came McAlle and Collins also slugged. Fournier then drove out a triple and the round ended with the Sox leading by four runs. Collins hit a single, but he was not a Numa-maker, gave them another in the fifth.

The New Yorks got one of those back in the seventh when Daley, a pinch hitter, singled and scored. The Sox then had Boone, Hartzell, Foley, the latter, but Cole and Cree walked. Daley scored of course and Faber was chased. A double play robbed the visitors of any more.

St. Louis, July 26---The Browns and Washington broke even in a double header to-day. Louisa dropping the first 2 to 0 and taking the second 1 to 1. In the first game Ayers pitched a one hit game after relieving Engel, who was wild.

In the second the Browns jumped on Walter Johnson at the outset and hammered him hard. They got three runs in the first two innings, good support keeping the score low. After that Johnson pitched great ball, but the damage was done. The score: 3 to 1.

Athletics Pound Out Two Runs by Finding Danks.

Detroit, July 26---The world's champions clubbed out a second victory of the series this afternoon, defeating the Tigers by an 8 to 6 score in ten innings. The run in the third inning. ## AUSTRALIANS MUST SHOW BETTER TENNIS

GERMAN DUO FORMIDABLE

Impression Grows That Davis Cup May Stay in America for Another Year.

CHICAGO, July 26---At the close of the international lawn tennis matches for the Dwight F. Davis trophy last year, America having recovered the famous bowl, which had been away from home so long, it was freely predicted among close followers of the game at Wimbledon that the United States would not hold the prize very long. Those who had seen the American team play on the famous Queens Club courts in the final and challenge rounds based their opinions on the narrow margin by which the Yankees topped the Britons.

At any rate, there was enough said and written about the hard task of holding the cup to throw a scare into even the most rabid unholders of American supremacy in sport. The scare grew to considerable proportions when it was announced that Anthony P. Williams, Norman G. Brookes and Alfred W. Dunlop, three of the strongest players in the world, would play on the Australasian challenging team. Brookes and Wilding had beaten Maurice E. McLoughlin on previous meetings, and a combination of either Brookes and Wilding or Brookes and Dunlop looked well-nigh unbeatable.

Later on calamity-seekers found further cause for trouble and started a report that McLoughlin would be unable to come back to the year. This report was not in the least true. It was a trick to turn the attention to Norris Williams, Williams was reported to be in anything but proper condition, but he asked the London and Alfred W. Dunlop, three of the strongest players in the world, would play on the Australasian challenging team. Brookes and Wilding had beaten Maurice E. McLoughlin on previous meetings, and a combination of either Brookes and Wilding or Brookes and Dunlop looked well-nigh unbeatable.

Deciding Set Reaches Deuce Four Times in Final of Sivanoy Doubles.

FORM SUFFERS AN UPSET

Hunter and Ostendorf Thought Better Pair, but Greesbeck and O'Neale Dispute It.

Mont Vernon, July 26---Nightfall blocked the completion of the most brilliant match of the week at the Sivanoy Country Club open lawn tennis tournament to-day---the finals of the men's doubles. For more than two hours Albert J. Ostendorf of the Bedford Heights Tennis Club and Francis T. Hunter of the Cornell varsity battled to overcome James S. O'Neale of Columbia baseball fame and his partner, George S. Greesbeck of the West Side Tennis Club. When darkness terminated the struggle it was a draw at 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, the last set going to deuce four times. The committee cancelled the match and held it over until next Sunday to allow both pairs to play at tournaments this week.

It was generally conceded that on form Hunter and Ostendorf ought to win in straight sets. But the strategy and resourcefulness of O'Neale smashed the form theory into minute parts. O'Neale's lead in the first set was a surprise. He won the first set 6-2, 3-6, 6-3, 4-6, 8-6, the last set going to deuce four times. The committee cancelled the match and held it over until next Sunday to allow both pairs to play at tournaments this week.
